The screenshot shows a FanNation article titled "All Clippers" with a red header. The article discusses a hypothetical trade involving James Harden, the LA Clippers, Miami Heat, Philadelphia 76ers, and Portland Trail Blazers. A red arrow points to the "DT" icon next to James Harden's name in the article text. Another red arrow points to the "DapTab" extension icon in the bottom right corner of the browser window.

It has been widely reported that James Harden  wants the LA Clippers. That said, neither the Portland Trail Blazers and Philadelphia 76ers seem too enthusiastic about the current trade packages being offered for their respective stars. Because of this, could a massive four-team trade make sense?

In a recent article, Greg Swartz of Bleacher Report outlined a hypothetical blockbuster trade with the LA Clippers, Miami Heat, Philadelphia 76ers, and Portland Trail Blazers:

Los Angeles Clippers Receive: G James Harden, F J.J. Tucker

Philadelphia 76ers Receive: G Tyler Herro, F Caleb Martin, F Robert Covington, 2028 and 2029 second-round picks (via Miami Heat)

Portland Trail Blazers Receive: 2027 and 2029 unprotected first-round picks (via Miami Heat), 2028 and 2030 unprotected first-round picks (via )
